ONLY ONE BOMB EXPLODED

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SAYS MANY FAILED TO GO OFF

BILLINGS IDENTIFIED AS MAN ON ROOF WATCHING CORNER BEFORE THE CRASH

Plot Leveled at United Railroads, According to a Veiled Hint From the San Francisco Prosecutor--Bomb Found Today on Oakland Doorsteps With a Warning Note.

(By Associated Press.)
SAN FRANCISCO, July 28.—Warren K. Billings was identified today by James Crockett, a former motorman, who declares he knows him well, as the man he saw on top of a building at Steuart and Market streets just before the explosion. He said Billings left the roof of a one story building a few minutes before the explosion.

District Attorney Fickert expressed the belief that many suitcase bombs were placed along the route of the parade on Market street which did not explode. Fickert offered no explanation of the failure to explode.

Chief of Police White said he did not believe any anarchists were involved in the bomb outrage.

"It seems the whole thing is directed against the United railways," he said.

The police here are certain that among the eight persons under arrest they have the one who placed the suitcase bomb which exploded during the preparedness parade, killing nine and wounding forty.

The investigation is proceeding on the theory that the outrage was an attempted attack on the United railways and not the work of anarchists.

The movements of Billings have been traced and it was found he communicated with Mrs. Thomas Mooney, wife of the labor agitator. Both Mooney and his wife were jailed.

Formal complaints will be drawn up against at least two of the suspects for alleged complicity in the outrage. This decision was caused by the announcement of attorneys for Nolan and Weinberg that they would ask for their immediate release on a habeas corpus.
